

ALFONSO READY TO RULE AGAIN AND VISIT U. S.

New York, Dec. 4 (INS)—King Alfonso of Spain is ready to return to the throne at any time the people ask him to do so, he said today.

"I am a king, not a conspirator," he told Grand Duke Alexander of Russia in explaining that under no conditions would he do anything to disturb the republican government of Spain.

Grand Duke Alexander of Russia obtained the exclusive interview from the king at his residence in Paris, near Paris, where the king's forced abdication, where the royal Spanish family is living in exile.

The interview with King Alfonso will be published in the Redbook Magazine, beginning with the January issue, which today released it for publication.

It was also revealed that King Alfonso hopes to come to the United States soon, perhaps for the Olympic games in California next year.

"No particular energy is necessary to persuade me to visit California," the king said. "I have hoped to do it for a great many years."

"The only reason that keeps me from starting for America right at this moment is my determination not to do anything that might embarrass the present Spanish government."

"I fear they would interpret my trip as a mysterious political move."

'SONNY' GLEDHILL HAPPY THOUGH TRAGEDY STALKS

While two-year-old Peel Gledhill awaits the return of his mother, May Gledhill, Canadian "Ski Girl," from the hospital he is being cared for by Mrs. Inez Connor.

British Imports

From U. S. Heavy

London, Dec. 4.—Walter Runcie, president of the board of trade, told the House of Commons that in the 12 months ended Sept. 30 the United Kingdom had imported goods to the value of 114,000,000 pounds ($370,000,000 at par).

from the United States and had exported to that country goods worth 28,000,000 pounds ($84,000,000), creating a tremendous margin favoring the United States in the trade balance.

Every whim and every wish of "Sonny" are lovingly indulged by Mrs. Connor who has grown to love this child of her husband and his "Ski-Girl" companion.

FATHER OF GIRL IN 'PIANO BOX' DEFIANT

Escanaba, Mich., Dec. 4 (INS)—Around an eight-year-old girl, Elaine Plucker, a storm of civic excitement raged today as the consequence of charges that she was mistreated and imprisoned in a piano packing case by her father and stepmother.

While juvenile authorities debate over the future of the pale and emaciated child, the father, Howard Plucker, denied the accusation that he and his wife had tortured the child and buried a challenge to the state to try to take her from her home.

"I feel that I am the best fitted to give my child a home," he said, "and I intend to keep her."

The child was back in her parents' home today, pending an investigation to be conducted by C. H. Dansey, superintendent of the State Juvenile School in Coldwater. After the investigation, it will be determined whether she will be placed in care of a private family or taken to a children's home.

Elaine's case, involving in many respects that of Elsie Riley, the

When Is a Spanking Not a Spanking? Court Is Asked

Chicago, Dec. 4 (AP)—The widely divergent views of four-year-old Billy Jackson and Prof. Frederick C. Hays of the Northwestern University Law School as to what constitutes a spanking, became a question for settlement today.

The professor said he merely spanked Billy in a fatherly manner when he burst out in the backyard to keep Billy and another boy from setting burned by a rubbish fire.

But Billy and his mother said it was a spanking and Mr. Jackson put the question to Judge Robert E. McMillan for a decision.

"Upboard girl" of Washington, was tried in Probate Judge Just Yell and court, where neighbors of the Plucker family testified against the parents.

They charged that the girl was kept in a packing box in the back yard of her home, throughout most of the year, in warm and in cold weather.

At night, they testified, the girl was taken to sleep in the basement. They intimated that the step-mother would keep her out of the house to avoid the neighbors.

Elaine's telephone exchanges today reported that the number of calls to the home of Elaine's father was about a light.

HOOVER TO PUT BILLION PLAN TO CONGRESS

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—The formula for a $1,000,000,000 corporation designed along lines of the War Finance Corp. has been worked out by President Hoover and will be submitted to Congress.

The new organization will be planned to supplement the work being done through the banking pool organized after President Hoover's meeting with congressional leaders Oct. 27.

The President hopes to have details worked out in time to lay them in his message Tuesday.

No one has yet been selected as a possible head of the new corporation and there is a strong possibility that Congress may be asked to make that selection.

The President may still today to feel that the banking pool has given extremely effective service in raising confidence in banks and enabling the banks themselves to remain liquid. Its scope, however, has not been as broad as the credit situation demands.

The President has conferred with recent weeks with a number of men associated with the old War Finance Corporation, including Bernard Baruch, who was head of the War Industries Board.

WANT CONNER IN NEW HAVEN

friends of the family but whether such a plan includes the "ski girl" baby, son of Ernest W. Conner, maiden construction engineer, was not made known.

PUZLED BY MIXUP
Mrs. Gledhill, breaking silence for the first time since her arrival in New York three days ago, said she could not understand the arrangement by which her daughter made her home with Conner's middle-aged wife while Conner started serving a prison term in Vermont for the first time.

Miss Gledhill's two-year-old son is still in Mrs. Conner's care and she is willing to take care of him indefinitely. Conner's wife will also open her home again to the ski girl's young love if Miss Gledhill has no other place to go upon discharge from the hospital, she said.

STICK TO BABY
"My husband, who loves May, has written from prison urging that I take care of the girl and her baby," she said. "I believe she should go home with her child but she has nowhere else to go so she can certainly come here. In the meantime I will take care of her baby for I love him, too."

Mrs. Conner readily admitted her husband was still in love with the ski girl and revealed a letter, dated November 12, showing to the ski girl's father that she was willing to have her visit him. The letter, addressed to his wife, asked that May be sent to visit him as he and the ski girl jointly held a winning ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes. The drawing in the sweepstakes was not made until two days after the letter was dated and the race was run two weeks after that.

He claimed in the letter that their ticket had won third prize and asked that the ski girl and her baby be sent to the prison to visit him so that the money could be collected.

Conner is wanted in New Haven, Ct., on a forged charge involving a $200 check it was revealed today. He is also wanted in Hartfordport on Cape Cod on a charge of similar nature.

TO HEAR ALL IN MOONEY CASE
San Francisco, Dec. 4 (AP)—A hearing on behalf of persons opposing a pardon for Tom Mooney, convicted preparedness day bomber, loomed today with the statement of Capt. Charles Goff of the San Francisco police department that he had asked the Governor for such a hearing.

Goff, who had charge of the police investigation at the time of the bombing in 1934, said he requested the hearing before Mooney's three attorneys, including Mayor Walker of New York, made a plea before the chief executive early in the week for a pardon.

Lewis P. Hyington, legal adviser to the Governor, indicated such a hearing would be granted, stating he considered it the duty of the pardoning powers to consider all facts on both sides.

Speeding Car Nearly Runs Down Officer
Patrolman William B. Whalen of the Newton police narrowly escaped injury when the driver of a speeding auto drove the machine directly at him in Washington st.

As the car shot past, almost grazing his chest, Officer Whalen observed that the woman was struggling with a second man. Patrolman Whalen fired one shot at the fleeing sedan before it disappeared in the darkness, headed for Boston.

MOSES BOLTERS MENACE G. O. P. SENATE RULE

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—Senate Republicans and Democrats organized their machines today without a hitch, but the Republicans independently opposing re-election of George Moses, New Hampshire, as president pro tem, advertised themselves from their party conference.

The two parties will go into the session opening Monday with their same organizations, Watson, Indiana, heading the Republicans, and Robinson, Arkansas, the Democrats.

The row over Moses, involving possibly an upset of Republican control of the Senate, will be fought out on the floor with at least five of the Republican independents opposing re-election of the man who termed them "Sons of the Wild Jacks."

DEMOCRATS ABSENT

The Republican revolution did not intend to support a Democrat in place of Moses, but rather another Republican. This may forestall the threatened repudiation by friends of Moses to take away the chairmanship of the bolters.

Republicans are confident of their full strength of 48 members when the session opens Monday but the Democrats will be without two of their 47 members—Gov. Huger, Long, of Louisiana, and Stephens, Mississippi.

Mr. Caraway, Arkansas, recently appointed to succeed her late husband, did not attend the Democratic party today but she is expected to be present on roll call.

IT IS A CHOICE

The absence of the western independents under Bush, Idaho, and Norris, Nebraska, forestalled a dispute over Moses in the Republican caucus.

The Republicans will stand by Edwin P. Thayer, Indiana, and David L. Barry, Rhode Island, as Senate secretary and sergeant-at-arms, respectively.

The Democrats nominated Edwin A. Halsey, Virginia, for secretary of the Senate and J. L. Doherty, Montana, for sergeant-at-arms.

Senator Pittman of Nevada is his choice for president pro tem.

METCALF READY TO REVOLT

Providence, R. I., Dec. 4 (AP)—Reports in Washington that Sen. Jesse H. Metcalf would not vote for Sen. George H. Moses for re-election as president pro tem of the Senate were described today as unfounded by Senator Metcalf.

"I have sent word to Washington," Senator Metcalf said, "to find out if it is true that Senator Moses threatened to deprive some of the Progressives of their committee chairmanships if they do not vote for him for president pro tem. I cannot believe such threats have been made."

"I have not received an answer, and so have not made up my mind whether I will vote for Senator Moses. If the threats have been made, I should seriously consider not voting for him. I have never yielded to blackmail or intimidation and I am too old to begin yielding to them now."

Washington dispatches said the report, Senator Metcalf was in the anti-Moses camp was based on the public warning Metcalf served on Moses in 1920. Moses was told that interference by him as chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee in the Rhode Island senatorial race would not be welcomed.

CONGRESS ACTS ON DEBTS FIRST

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—President Hoover's moratorium proposal, granting a year's extension on World War debt payments, has been given first place on the legislative program of the new Congress. Senator James E. Watson, majority leader, announced today after a party conference of Republican senators.

The Republicans organized their party machine for the coming session, but curiously enough failed to discuss or take any action on the insurgent revolt against Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire as President pro tem.

Watson announced that "because officials of the Senate were elected to serve until successors are named, no action was taken by the conference. This meant that Moses will have the support of Republican regulars of the insurgents force the election of a new President pro tem."

Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio was named Republican "whip" by Watson after the latter had been unanimously re-elected as Republican leader for another term.

Employment Office Reports Less Jobs

Poles Hang 2 More Spies

Grodno, Poland, Dec. 4 (AP)—Two Russians convicted of espionage in Poland were hanged today by firing to 10 the number of such persons within a week. Two more cases are pending.

Time on His Hands, Digs His Own Grave

Ansonia, Ct., Dec. 4 (AP)—Nelsa Sudaway, 43-year-old Russian, has dug his own grave, built a concrete vault, but does not expect to use them for many years. Sudaway worked on the grave for the past three weeks in the little Three Saints Cemetery and was mistaken for the gravedigger by persons who noticed him. He told the caretaker he had no particular reason for digging the grave except that he had no other work and thought he might save the expense of having someone else do it.

Maine Senate Head Seeks Governor Post

FREE SPEECH FOR FASCISTS;
MUST WOOD WEEP?

SEE H. G. WELLS

By GILBERT SELDES

I am enough an admirer of free speech to allow free speech even to its enemies, and liberty seems to me a rather mean and feeble commodity if we cannot allow a little of it to tyrants. That means, to my shame, that I see no reason why we should play radicals in jail for saying what they think and no reason why Fascists should not send representatives here on governmental missions. Lovers of liberty are usually a little more partial, and reserve freedom only to the friends of freedom, thinking it a disgrace for America to receive the visit, even if it is not a defense, of a dictator. (In England a part of the population thinks it equally disgraceful to receive an ambassador from Russia.)

Justice in Philadelphia

The striking thing about the Philadelphia incident in the visit of Signor Dino Grandi is the moderation of both the interested parties, as compared with the fury of the technically impartial judge. Orlando Sparaco, a lad of 26, Italian in origin, was convicted of leaping upon the running board of Grandi's motor and shouting some derogatory remarks. It is denied that he waved a red flag, but even that may be granted to make out a complete case. On the whole this seems to me not an excess of violence. It was impolite and disorderly, but as a manifestation against an enemy, it was mild.

Another Young Italian

On the other hand, Signor Grandi, also a young man, and an extremely glib and wise one in the ways of the world, telegraphed the Governor of Pennsylvania that, without wishing to interfere in the domestic affairs of the State, he hoped it would be possible to be lenient to the young Sparaco. Grandi had reason to be indulgent, to be sure. After all the uneasiness of the State Department and all the cascades of protesting politicians, then the "incident" of his visit had simmered down to a few handbills at a concert hall and a few unpleasant cries. He appealed, in short, for clemency and pardon for his enemy.

Upright Judge

In between stands Judge Harry S. McDevitt. Here I throw out of the court the accusation of his enemies that he is always against liberty, the underdog, labor and radicals. The important thing is that Judge McDevitt, the innocent bystander, the upright and impartial man, acted with ten times the fury of the aggressor and ten times the panic of the victim. The sentence of two years in prison, the deliberate infliction of a legal maximum intended for grave instances of incitement to riot, is pure poetic justice. It is unbalanced, the punishment having no proper relation to the magnitude of the crime or the suffering of the victim. Judge McDevitt is only another of the old men who stayed behind the firing line and hated the enemy a hundred times as intensely and a thousand times as meanly as the soldiers who did the fighting.

Did Wood Weep?

Since I am interested in news, it takes a long time for rumor to reach me, and I have only now heard it said that Barry Wood of Harvard wept for two hours after the game which his team lost to Yale. If this is true, it is not so much a discredit to Wood as to the teaching staff of Harvard, of which Wood is supposed to be a particular prize, since he is an athlete who gets high marks and as been elected to Phi Beta Kappa. The head of the Greek department has been negligent, if Wood wept, because three years of collegiate Greek should have acquired acuity in the Greek tragedians and instructed him when it was wise to weep and when more noble to be silent to the end. The Latin branch is equally at fault for not having inspired Wood to emulate the Roman censor. The teachers of English and of comparative literature, the whole department of philosophy are challenged by the spectacle of Wood's tears. For their sake, I hope he did not shed them.

Wells on Wood

As I am under a private oath to mention H. G. Wells once every day this week, and as Wells's "Work, Wealth and Happiness of Mankind" touches virtually every subject that can arise, I might as well bring him in here. Mr. Wood, whether he cried or not, may read the half-chapter on sport in this book and learn that collegiate sport is a fairly new thing in the world, overgrown for special reasons by undergraduates, faculties and alumni. And that sport itself has such a place in the affairs of men that it requires the tribute of tears only when it is misused. Young Mr. Wood seems to be one of the few persons engaged in football who put it in its proper place. And in spite of the subterranean glee over the defeat of the intellectual, he may be assured that he is not in disgrace with fortune and in men's eyes.

Show on the Stage

A casual paragraph in a letter of Bernard Shaw's quoted by Frank Harris in his biography tells more about the secret of the stage than a hundred essays. "I once said to Trevelyan," says Shaw, after the death of Beerbohm Tree, "have you noticed all through these rehearsals that, though you and I have had twenty years' stage experience, and have reached the top of our profession, you treat me as an amateur beginner, and I do the same to you?"

I think this is universally true of the theater. Some directors feel that they must treat actors not only as beginners, but as idiots; some actors deserve this treatment. But Shaw, who laid down the laws of courtesy and followed them, knew that with each play the stage renews itself. Good directors stand for the most appalling lectures from their actors, and good actors from their directors, because, in effect, they are beginners with every new play. And the plays which give pleasure, the players who please, all carry over a little of this fresh quality in the finished performance.

Some Freshness

This has been a pretty bad year in the theater about which theater has lacked all conviction. It does not believe itself necessary to seem to feel itself doing. And they are, however, gaining the dying members into an electric activity without the strength and assurance of normal life. For all that he uses a plot which the talkies will snap up, Mr. S. N. Behrman writes for the stage and needs the stage; so his "Bright Moment" has quality and Miss Frances Lorraine in it has a kind of innocent belief in the stage which makes her performance remarkable. Miss Cornell, now returned with "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," begins each play with trepidation and ends in triumph, out of the show belief. Alia Brady and Alia Brady, moving as if inspired through the O'Neill trilogy because it is a new thing in the theater. Good bits occur in half a dozen other plays. But the rest of the above never had any serious intention of remaining alive.

GLASS EYE GLUE NABS PAIR

A glass eye and the name "Lester" spoken by one of the pair who assaulted him led today in the arrest of Lester E. Brown and Arthur Crook, both of Lynn, charged with assault and robbery of Arthur Boutin, Lawrence case driver.

Boutin told police that one of the two men who beat and robbed him after fracturing his eye.

after engaging him in front of a Lawrence speakery to drive them to Lynn, called his companion Lester and took a glass eye and exhibited it.

On that description, police arrested Brown and Crook, who denied the charges in Lynn court today and declared all three had engaged in a drinking bout. The two were held in $5000 bail for trial Monday.

Brooks Leader

Roxbury, Vt., Dec. 4.—Roy I. Brooks of Newfane, Vt., was elected captain of the University of Vermont cross-country team for 1932 at a meeting here.

TEACHER SAVES GIRL ON FIRE

Only the quick work of Miss Celia Morel, a teacher in the Spencer area school, Chelsea, today saved the life of Kide Tseng, a fourth grade pupil, when the little girl's dress caught fire and she ran, a flaming torch, through the building.

Kide was washing her hands in the basement when flames from a water heater ignited the back of her dress.

Screaming, the terrified girl leaped upstairs and was running through a corridor when the teacher caught her and wrapped a coat around her, smothering the flames but burning her own hands.

In the Chelsea police ambulance, Kide was taken to Chelsea Memorial Hospital and treated for burns on the back and arms, while the teacher's hands were treated by the school physician.

Get a good piece of your mind, but it won't get you it, keep it, and use it with care. Use the mind you have.

AGE-OLD RELICS IN NEW HOME

Chicago, Dec. 4 (AP)—A life-sized ream of Prof. James H. Breasted, Orientalist and Egyptologist, was realized today when the collection to which he is attached, the University of Chicago, opened a $1,500,000 treasure house for the prime relic, a relic of a man's antiquity.

The building, of gothic design, surrounded by a sunken garden, houses the Oriental Institute, Inc.

University officials said it was the largest archaeological headquarters in the world.

When it will be directed by the work of the university's many expeditions.

Today, in the real estate column of the Chicago Tribune, the following is the listing of the property.

GENEROSITY IS HER RULE

Two New Englanders Jones' Colleague
Ask Reno Directors Fight's 5 and 10 Law

By J. P. O'SHEA
International News Co.

RENO, Nev., Dec. 3.—The Reno Board of Directors today voted to fight the 5 and 10 law, which would limit the amount of money that can be won in a single day at the gaming tables.

The board's action was a direct result of the generous contributions made by the local gaming community to the city's defense fund during the recent war.

The board members, who are all prominent citizens, expressed their confidence that the city would be able to withstand any attempt to restrict gaming.

They also announced that they would continue to support the city's efforts to improve its infrastructure and provide for the needs of its residents.

The board's decision was met with approval by the gaming community, which has long been a source of pride for the city.

FIRST NATIONAL STORES.

The President of a woman's club writes us —

We've had a number of letters of this sort. And all of them were from women who had personally visited our meat market. After seeing the spotless cleanliness of our meat warehouse and the elaborate precautions observed there for the maintenance of our high standards of meat quality, they were satisfied that they could not buy better meat than that sold at First National Stores. You only have to try some First National meat to prove that for yourself.

FANNING

DRAWS UP TO OFFICIALS TO DISSOLVE

The overwhelming victory over Georgia, which smothered Yale, is sufficient Eastern proof of the class and caliber of our unbeaten and untied Tulane, which meets Washington State in an emotional game on Saturday, but the West Coast will size up the Louisiana team through the conflict with the Georgia, Washington and Stanford teams. Tulane has a reputation for being a team the Coaches had tried to conquer time. You all know what Stanford did to Da' mouth. The Tulane-Washington game may show something of the comparative ability of Tulane and Southern California who have met on the Coast. Tulane scarcely can be expected to do much better than it did last year when it lost to Southern California behind Washington State, 35 to 8, for Bob Hollingberg has the Coogars clicking much stronger than earlier in the season when they went down before Howard Jones' green machines. Every team has an off day. It will not do for Tulane to lose to the Coast West Coast, or it will not be copied for its unbeaten and untied pedestal.

Public Rights Ignored Another Auto Insurance Injustice

Examples of the queer and inconsistent quirks in this middle known as compulsory automobile liability insurance come to light every day.

Take the case of Albert Coburn, venerable town father of Dracut, and James E. Bannister of Fall River.

Their cars were involved in a collision. Several occupants were hurt, some of them seriously. They brought suit against each other for damages totalling $75,000.

As plaintiffs, they had their own lawyers. As defendants, they were obliged to rely upon the insurance companies' lawyers, not of their own choosing.

A jury at Lowell rendered a verdict in favor of Bannister. Coburn now claims that the insurance company lawyer, without his consent and without the knowledge of his own lawyer, rushed over to the county courthouse at Cambridge, entered an execution of the verdict and thus probably deprived him of his right to appeal, to secure a retrial and to press the claim for damages to the occupants of his car.

In more ways than one this auto law treats independent American citizens of their natural rights.

They can't move their cars as much on the public highways until they have applied to private insurance companies for insurance policies.

They are compelled, as in the Coburn case, to accept lawyers whose prior interest and concern is for the insurance companies.

They are compelled to accept conditions in the insurance policies presumably approved by the Insurance Commissioner, but nevertheless drafted by the able attorneys of the private companies.

It is about time that the State of Massachusetts, which fastened this system upon the public, should demonstrate some regard for the rights of the public in this matter.

A Strong Candidate N. H. Democrats Select Progressive Man

The Democrats of New Hampshire have chosen a fine candidate for Congress and an excellent platform.

William N. Rogers, when in Congress, was a sincere, devoted and upstanding progressive of thorough independence. There is every indication that the years have strengthened, rather than lessened, his progressive convictions.

Now as to the platform.

One of its planks proposes repeal of national prohibition, with all its notorious evils, and suggests that the States be authorized to determine their own policies for temperance. In that, the convention certainly was true to the democratic precepts enunciated by Thomas Jefferson.

Another plank demands the maintenance of an adequate Army and Navy for defense of the United States and pledges Mr. Rogers to oppose the silly and dangerous attempt of Mr. Hoover to scuttle the Navy and to reduce the Army and the Marine Corps to the status of a corporal's guard.

Still another plank commits Mr. Rogers to support a bond issue by the national government "for public improvements to assist in ending the present unemployment."

Obviously, the Democrats of New Hampshire in their solemn convention were unanimously impressed by the efficacy of Mr. Rogers' declaration that a Five Billion Dollar Prosperity Loan would supply employment, develop the country's natural resources and substitute confidence and courage where doubt, hesitation and lack of foresight have existed.

In fact, everybody seems to be convinced of it except some of the timorous ladders at Washington.

Your Christmas Shopping

Do your Christmas shopping NOW!

This is an old admonition with a new twist. It has all the virtues of the old advice: Do your Christmas shopping early—and more.

Early Christmas shopping is a sweet homecoming. Like the quality of mercy, it blesses both parties to the transaction.

The early shopper has a decided advantage over the other fellow. He gets the things he wants. There is no hurry about delivery. Frequently the prices are lower. He is spared the hurry and worry of the last-minute buyer.

The early shopper lightens the burdens of the hurried sales people, delivery men and postoffice employees, to whom the Christmas season is hardly a holiday.

And so, we repeat: Do your Christmas shopping NOW.

If you do your Christmas shopping NOW, you will spread the Christmas spirit, which will go a long way toward relieving the depression that afflicts us.

The Christmas spirit, about which we hear so much, is merely the spirit of unselfishness, of giving to others, of carrying a little sunshine to brighten up the dark corners, of spreading the doctrine of good-will to all men.

To engender and spread that spirit, which we need at all times, but never as badly as NOW, include in your Christmas gifts something for the poor family in the alley back of you, for the kids whose daddy is out of work, for the orphan, the shut-in, or those for whom the sunset of life has many hardships.

If every reader of this appeal will do his or her bit in spreading the Christmas spirit—and do it NOW—it will be a Merry Christmas, indeed.

Just Biology

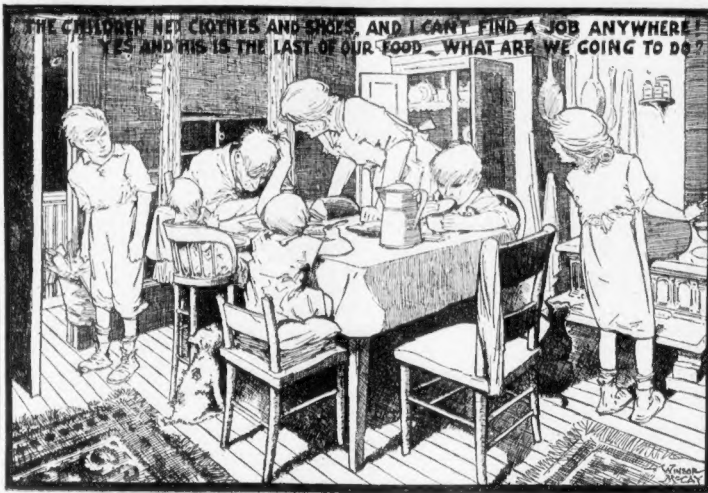

Perhaps the ancients were not so wrong about love philtres after all. A writer in the American Priscian as good as says affection can be secured for a few cents at the apothecary's. He works it out that if mothers no longer love their children, the trouble is pathological. They just need a little more manganese in their diet.

Wonder what Dr. J. B. Priscian has tried out on rats. A number of rodents displayed a lack of interest in their young were given a jolt of manganese, and at once lavished affection on their offspring.

Now mother love is perfectly clear. When Cornelia, mother of the Gracchi, said "These are my jewels," it wasn't maternal affection so much as that the lady had plenty of manganese in her system.

This will certainly be a boon to song writers. "Mother" and "love" have so few words to rhyme with. And "manganese" though it does sound a little chemical—has 35, according to the abiding dictionary.

What Are They Going to Do? And You?

We wish we could say this drawing by Winsor McCay is a product of his classical imagination.

Unfortunately, it is not.

It is true to life.

Not is it an isolated instance.

It is a scene duplicated in Many a home in Many a community at this time.

As the chill blasts of Winter now come to us, the suffering is intensified in homes such as you see above.

Man, the breadwinner, finds himself out of work, through no fault of their own.

On the threshold of Winter, their families are destitute of funds, fuel, food and clothing.

In this rich land of ours, where warehouses bulge with cotton and wheat, there are women and children compelled to plead for the barest necessities of life.

They must rely upon their fellow-beings in comfortable circumstances to come to their aid.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling
NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Thoughts while strolling: More old-fashioned designers were available in mid-Victorian dignity. No window display and grave circles in dusts. Arthur McKenney, editor, was here and one of the few who can join with Pershing. Oscar Stover's hair is thinning, but he can get by for years with those teeth.

Maurice Chevalier, Paris, France, who made good in the city. Crowds waiting for non-day Christmas lecture. More Christian-looking doomers these days. Nothing smarter than a blue polka dot tie. Rarely see Hope Hamilton in daylight. Her husband, Jules Brulout, has Caesar's profile, by the way.

Henderson, Kentucky's illustrious citizens—Col. Jos. Hartfield and Ewing Gallaway. Not many appreciate the bliss of solitude in this town. Always they seek swift currents. Watson Barrett, runner-up for Urban, in scenic designing. Alfred Lunt and Lynne Fontanne upland the Barrymores as Broadway's newest Royal Family.

Those horrible, Valentino, white-burns are so again. Eight-button white kid gloves for evening wear "the berries." Not so many moles. Since the depression. But there's still that Old Snapper with white derby. And a valise and red Ascot. Constable Collier and Helen Morgan bear resemblance.

Ann Pennington appears as a Southern girl with an accent in a "You-ah!" What became of Texas Costa? Nobody looks so coquettish as Billie Burke when she tries to And on the stage she usually trying. Bar-leeged athletes in short, galloping through town. R-e-e-l!

Speakeasy owners are now Broadway's bluest dressers. Tea rooms featuring Kentucky black haw and better dressed. Thomas Hartney a dancer, suggesting Jack Donaghy. Jay O'Brien seems one of the permanent residents. Frances Williams hasn't eloped with a piano player lately. Wonder what Dr. J. B. Priscian has tried out on rats.

Flappers who speak "Hot Mickey" I now talk. Talk first, as the bill reads—Ziegfeld's white "You-ah!" Wonder if anyone else is back in the city. Last evening, time you go places you are bound to see Jules Gonser. He seems to pop out of the woodwork.

Steve Hannigan has become the ivory jack of all trades and master of quite a few. Winter he ballyhooes for Miami Beach. Summer he's trying the auto races in Indianapolis. During the summer he

Only Thing That Pays
I HAVE tried many things in life. I have found only one thing that always pays. That is love. Love always pays. . . but it seldom pays as we think it will when we are young. When we are young, we think that love will be like a magic wand. . . sweet, safe, exclusively thrilling. . . sweetly blessed. We do not dream that love may be grim and dangerous. . . that there will be heavy penalties to love. . . that it will be the costliest thing in our experience.

And we are shocked when the truth begins to dawn upon us. "This can't be love!" we cry. "Love wouldn't do this to me. Why should love fail me when I have been so kind? Why should love bring worry and disappointment, humiliation and heart-break? Why should love hurt me and make me angry? Why should love be the costliest thing in our experience?"

Yes, love can do these things. Love, if it is real, is the most demoralizing thing that can happen in our life. It will invade all your privacy. It will break up your snug, safe scheme of things. It will raise Cain with your net conceits and illusions.

For love is as mysterious and terrible as birth or death. It is another sort of birth and death. It is the death of an old self and the birth of a new self.

And that new self will reward you. If you have suffered—then you have the courage to go through it.

Those whom you love may not reward you. They may not be able to accept your love. They may cheat and you impose upon you and fail you. If you have suffered—then you have the courage to go through it.

Those whom you love may not reward you. They may not be able to accept your love. They may cheat and you impose upon you and fail you. If you have suffered—then you have the courage to go through it.

The Navy League's Reply

(From the Republican New York Herald-Tribune)

The Navy League's preliminary reply to the President's committee does not attempt to answer its charges in detail. Mr. Howe has preferred to single out a few high spots in that extraordinary document by which to test its reliability, accuracy and good faith.

The warmest supporters of the administration must admit that the result is a shocking revelation of haste, carelessness and misquotation, in say nothing of avoidance of the main issue. As was recognized at the time of its selection, the personnel of the committee—constituted of personal friends and official appointees—foreclosed the possibility of a judicial finding. The haste with which the indictment was drawn up and voted, without the slightest opportunity for the Navy League to be heard in its defense, raised grave suspicions of its reliability even as a basis for congressional investigation.

Yet we doubt if anyone suspected that Mr. Hoover's committee would be subjected to such scathing evidence as is now revealed. We do not believe for an instant that any of the gentlemen who composed the committee intended such a deception. But the exhibition of haste and carelessness involved is all the greater, assuming, as we are glad to do, the good faith of the members. With the Navy League's table in front of its eyes, to mistake its contents and transcribe its figures so that the 13.1 of Great Britain was ascribed to Japan is one of those incomprehensible blunders which in the most charitable interpretation written down the committee's expert adviser, whoever he was, as a case.

We have no wish to take up the reply in further detail. The findings of the President's committee never had any probative force. Now that its gross inaccuracy has been revealed, it can be treated as an indictment only with every reserve. Yet we think the country will welcome the endeavor of the Navy League to return the discussion to the one really vital issue. The country is far more concerned in the question of national safety than in any question of detailed figures, garbled or ungarbled.

Has the administration adequately supported the navy toward this end? Does Mr. Hoover understand the full responsibility of a fleet? Here are issues much too grave to be left either to a group of the President's friends or to any private organization to decide. The Navy League's reply makes a thorough investigation by Congress a more urgent necessity than ever.

The country has little time to devote to the findings of a packed committee acting upon distorted facts. It has ample time to discover whether its first line of defense at home and its overseas territory, and its only line of defense for its far-flung sea-borne commerce is being properly maintained in respect to equipment, men and morale.

Hoover Again Repudiated

Once more the voters have repudiated the Hoover administration—this time in Jersey.

With the only issue, however, Hoover policies and the Hoover administration—the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey, normally Republican by large pluralities, has sent a Democrat to Congress, thereby giving the Democrats a majority over all the other winning ticket.

The defeated G. O. P. candidate pleaded for voters to support the administration at Washington while the Democratic winner, Percy H. Stewart, attacked the administration and made much of Hoover ineptitude, Hoover inaction and Hoover procrastination in dealing with pressing American problems, while showing great concern over the woes of the people of other nations; and the voters, in their resentment, turned against the administration.

If it shows which way the wind is blowing, the significance of the returns from this district is apparent.

Ely at the Bridge

Young Culbertson, of Broadway,
By the nine gods he swore
That he could take with 13 cards
Eight tricks or nine or more.
By the nine gods he swore it.
Such was his style of play
That messengers he hurried forth,
East and west and south and north.
To teach the better way.

East and west and south and north
We contract with lessons led.
Until it seemed their thundering shock
The peacocks of all the world.
Men quarreled at their luncheon.
And women angry grew
Defending gallant (defending) views
Whose forcing bid was "two."

World-wide began a counting
Of honor tricks in hand.
A new and curious language
Like players went through the land.
And many a dame to learn it
Went out and pawned a brooch
To buy a book explaining
The Culbertson approach.

O'er four-card suits men pondered
As parsons o'er a text.
This was the nation's problem
Which suit shall I bid next?
While women struggled bravely
To get their lessons learned
For fifty a pot had been
And many a steak was burned.

When age shall end the carnage
And time our strength de-flower,
When cards no more shall lure us
To pass the luncheon hour,
When comes the perfect system,
Still shall the tale be told
How Culbertson taught contract bridge
In the brave days of old.
